

Department of Nutrition-Required Courses for 2010 Admitted Doctoral Students

Subject	Credit	First Year		Second Year		Remarks
		Sem1	Sem2	Sem1	Sem2
Advanced nutrition	2	2
Seminar(I)	1	1
Advanced nutrition	2		2
Applied statistics	2		2			Master's students can take this course.
Seminar(II)	1		1
Seminar(III)	1			1
Seminar(IV)	1				1
Ph.D. Dissertation	12				12
Total credits	22	3	5	1	13

Annotation from school

1. Students need to pass English ability examination before graduating.
2. This credit table will be considered as the confirmation for the credits of graduation.

Annotation from nutrition department

1. The goal of our Ph.D. program is to provide graduate students with solid training to become independent researchers in the areas of nutrition science, clinical nutrition, public health, and food science, with the application of Chinese and Western medicines.
2. These regulations are applicable for 2010 admitted doctoral students. It's a two-year to seven-year course. Minimum credits: 36, including required courses (10), elective courses (14) and Ph.D. Dissertation(12).
3. Students need to pass English ability examination before graduating.
4. This credit table will be considered as the confirmation for the credits of graduation.

Department of Nutrition-Elective Courses for 2010 Admitted Doctoral Students

Subject	Credit	First Year		Second Year		Remarks
		Sem1	Sem2	Sem1	Sem2
Advanced nutritional epidemiology	2	2
Management of nutritional informatics	2	2
Writing scientific paper	2	2
Advanced sensory evaluation	3	3
Advanced functional foods	2		2
Applied Chinese and western medical nutrition	2		2
Advanced food science	2		2
Advanced food chemistry	2			2
Advanced lipid research	2			2
Management of nutritional database	3			3
Application of nutritional informatics	2			2
Grant proposal writing	2				2
Neuro-degenerative diseases and nutrition	2				2
Advanced clinical nutrition	2				2
Advanced nutrition and cardiovascular disease	2				2
Total credits	32	9	6	9	8

Annotation from school

1. Students need to pass English ability examination before graduating.
2. This credit table will be considered as the confirmation for the credits of graduation.

Annotation from nutrition department

1. The goal of our Ph.D. program is to provide graduate students with solid training to become independent researchers in the areas of nutrition science, clinical nutrition, public health, and food science, with the application of Chinese and Western medicines.
2. These regulations are applicable for 2010 admitted doctoral students. It's a two-year to seven-year course. Minimum credits: 36, including required courses (10), elective courses (14) and Ph.D. Dissertation(12).
3. Students need to pass English ability examination before graduating.
4. This credit table will be considered as the confirmation for the credits of graduation.